News of “What About Clients?”

In January, “What About Clients?” (www.whataboutclients.com), Hull McGuire’s online magazine, was voted by ABA Journal readers as the “Best Business Blog”, competing with legal websites of writers for the Wall Street Journal and Fortune magazine. Previously, in October 2007, a study by Carnegie Mellon University’s School of Computer Science ranked “WAC?” one of the “100 Most Informative Blogs” in the world.

In July, lawyer-journalist Mike Semple Piggot, of the popular London radio program “Charon QC”, interviewed “What About Clients?” founder Dan Hull for the second time. In a spirited and compelling program, Piggot and Hull discussed the meaning of client service for higher-end business clients, "lawyer-speak" and workplace conflicts between baby boomers and generations X/Y. A podcast of the interview can be found on the right sidebar of the "WAC?" website. Hull's first interview with Piggot took place in London in March 2007.
